

HOFFMAN'S DECISION.

A decision in the case of the State of California vs. Liburcio Parrott has been rendered by Judge Hoffman. He declares the act in conflict with the treaty with China and the Constitution of the United States. He says among other things: "If the Legislature has the power to declare that corporations shall not employ Chinese, they possess the same right to declare that Germans, Irish or Americans shall not be so employed. Further; They could exercise the right to declare that the employees of corporations shall be of a certain creed." Judge Sawyer concurred in the decision and the prisoner was discharged. The whole fact of the matter is, that the Chinese are here; those that are here now will stay and more will come. They are like a certain class of weeds in a garden, which once having taken root can never be extirpated. We have a yellow elephant on our hands, and considering the fact that we secured the elephant ourselves and wanted very bad to have it, we have no valid reason for growling if the animal proposes to consider himself owned by us. The Chinese were absolutely dragged over here from China. When the proposition of a treaty was first made with the Chinese Government, it was a proposition which the rulers of the Empire would not entertain for a moment. Then the American representatives began to wrestle with them on the proposition and pictured the delights of a residence on this coast and the invigorating effects of a California climate until they entranced the ears of the Mongol rulers, and the result was that we got the Chinese. They received a warm welcome and they liked their new country. They sent back glowing descriptions of it to their sisters, cousins and aunts, who flocked in upon us with the generous assistance of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. It soon became apparent that they were not the sort of people we wanted. They did not spend their week's earnings in Saturday night spree, and they were of no earthly use on election day. There was nothing left to do but kick them out. No one denies that they should be kicked out, but the more thoughtful are looking about for the men who first induced them to come here. These are most assuredly the parties to kick. No nation can make serfs of another without serious detriment to its interests. The South brought the blacks from Africa and sowed a wind which they reaped years afterwards in the whirl of civil war. The presence of the Chinese on this coast is liable to prove in the end an evil equally gigantic. They irritate the body, social and politic, like a malignant rash, and the irritation can not much longer be endured. The present agitation is doing but little good. The exodus to the East amounts to nothing. They arrive as fast as they depart, and will continue to live with us as long as every man, woman and child in the community patronizes them with coin. The fact is, that the desire on the part of nearly everybody to save a few paltry cents, is what keeps the Chinese here and will keep them here for years to come. If every soul of the population would cease to patronize them for one week there would not be a Chinaman left within our borders. Even Denis Kearney, when he howls in the sand lots wears shoes made by Chinamen, and addresses an assemblage of workmen, two thirds of whom have their legs encased in Chinese-made overalls. We cannot legally eject them, and the spectre of the Burlingame treaty will not down.

Mayor Kallech last Sunday preached a sermon on Rev. John Hemphill, in which he alluded to him as a "fool," "sanctimonious hypocrite" and a "whited sepulchre." He believed that Christ had just such men in his eye when he said, "How shall ye escape the damnation of hell?" Hemphill has long been recognized in San Francisco as a blatant and conspicuous ass, and the strictures of Kallech who is looked upon as a knave, will be generally endorsed. In this theological row there are few persons who will take enough interest in either to care who cries quit first. So far Kallech has shown his guns to be of the heaviest calibre.

For the past forty-eight hours there has been considerable excitement all over the United States owing to the fact that the "City of Mexico," the ship on which Grant was traveling, had not arrived when due at Galveston, Texas. At one time it was believed that the ship had been lost in a storm. Yesterday afternoon the news was flashed over the wire that the steamer had arrived safe and sound. The death of Grant at this time would have inaugurated some material changes in the programme of the Fall campaign.

The Grand Jury propose to investigate the assault made on Tom Clarke. It is indeed high time that the cowardly ruffians who made such an attack on a peaceable citizen in open day were brought to justice. It might also be pertinent to ask how it was that the local police of Virginia City were not able to learn more of the affair the day it happened.

Guy Thorpe, home Secretary of the Savage, has resigned and will leave for New York shortly, intending to make his home in that city.

The Eureka Leader makes the following statement: Eureka's bullion output is very nearly half gold, and it is a notable fact that the percentage of that metal is increasing with every year's production. This is especially true of Prospect Mountain ores, some of them running entirely to gold. Leadville, with a population of 40,000, and an investment of $20,000,000 within the past year, does not double Eureka's daily ore output, in fact only exceeding our yield about 200 tons. Give this district one-fourth of the capital, and we will throw Leadville into the shade.

It is not the severity of punishment that deters criminals; it is the certainty of it. The laws of most countries are good enough; all that is required is that the laws be rigidly enforced.—Chronicle.

Let criminals know that when once in the toils of justice there will be no escape, and men will think twice before committing a crime. The law should be a machine with unerring action and unceasing motion; with no ear for whines for pity, and no heart for appeals for mercy. When the law is so considered there will be less work for it to do.

An evidence of the enlightened condition of the Japanese as compared with their neighbors in China exists in the fact that the duplex system of telegraphy with the Morse instrument has been in successful working for some months past on one of the longest Government lines, between Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki.

Two detectives "dressed as gentlemen" follow Mrs. Aster about when she wears a million dollars worth of diamonds. The disguise is well calculated to throw thieves off their guard, and the fact of allowing detectives so near her on such occasions only illustrates the trusting disposition of women.

On March 1st the United States Supreme Court rendered decisions in several cases involving the constitutionality of statutes, among them the Judge Rives and Tennessee cases. It is held that colored jurors must have equal rights and protection with white jurors.

Fernando Wood spent three hours in making a speech in Congress the other day in answer to the query, "can a three and a half per cent. bond be negotiated at par?" Most men would settle the question by making the practical experiment.
